There is still a simple and natural way to bring food to the table. This starts with local farmers and ranchers that have a deep respect for the land they cultivate. We source organically whenever possible, from small producers, never factory farms, and believe in humane animal husbandry. Our gratitude to the folks at Full Circle, Oxford, HayStack Mountain, Cure, Grant Family Farm, Monroe and First Fruits; as well as Meyer Ranch, Lasater Ranch, and Rosen Farms for taking the time to nurture and grow the ingredients that in turn do the same for us.

Salt is necessary for the survival of all known living creatures. In virtually all cultures, Salt held great importance and was a symbol of well-being and friendship. A gift of Salt endures in India as a potent symbol of good luck and a reference to Mahatma Gandhi's liberation of India. The "bread and salt" was a traditional Russian ceremony of welcome. As a sign of hospitality, when the emperor or empress visited their towns, merchants and gentry would present a loaf of bread placed on a round dish covered with an embroidered towel. A cellar of Salt was placed on top of the bread or set in a hole cut into the top of the bread. The early Greeks worshipped Salt no less than the sun, and had a saying that "no one should trust a man without first eating a peck of salt with him" (the moral being that by the time one had shared a peck of Salt with another person, they would no longer be strangers). Ancient sages have said: "Let your conversation be always full of grace, seasoned with Salt." and "Salt is the master of your food. God sent down four blessings from the sky—fire, water, iron and Salt." We would like to acknowledge the farmers and ranchers of Boulder and Weld County that supply us daily with the fruits of their hard work. Our gratitude to the folks at Full Circle, Oxford, Hay Stack Mountain, Cure, Grant, Monroe Family Farm and First Fruits. Meyer, Lasater Ranch, Long Family, and Rosen Farms. If you enjoy anything on your plate today it's because it came from them.
